Evidence & context

DOCUMENTED RECORD • OFFICIAL CALENDAR

The FEC lists November 3, 2026 as the next regularly scheduled federal general election.

This is a scheduled date, not a result or outcome forecast. State-specific administrative deadlines require their own current official records.

DOCUMENTED RECORD • OFFICIAL ELECTION RESULTS; CORRECTION C-017

The FEC's official 2024 results record Trump with 77,302,580 votes (49.80%) and Harris with 75,017,613 (48.32%); the electoral-vote result was 312-226.

This corrects the preserved Chapter 10 statement that treats 2024 as a national popular-vote loss. Trump won a plurality; a share below 50% does not mean losing the popular vote. It does not predict the 2026 midterms.

Open questions

1. Which election-administration rules are operative after rulings and appeals?
 2. What do official campaign-finance records disclose?
 3. Which results have been certified, and by which authority?
